In Kansas they are praying
For rain that never came,
In Kentucky we are saying,
"Rain postponed the game."
We can't all get our picking,
Of weather dry or wet,
But what's the use of kicking,
"It's all we gwine to get."

Oklahoma's drouth was broken
Friday by scattering rains.

Dayton, Ohio, has adopted commission from of government.

Twelve people were killed in Canton, China, Wednesday. Since thinking about it, it was 1,200.

Harry Thaw is the only man on record who was ever known to be anxious to get into Connecticut.

Chas. I. Stewart, former editor of the old Louisville Dispatch, now editor of the Eald Events, is a candidate to succeed Senator Thos. P.
Gore, of Oklahoma.

Coffee county, Tennessee claims that its exhibit of 12 corn stalks at the Nashville State Fair in 1907, averaging 18 feet high, broke the world's record for high corn.

Six passengers in an automobile
were killed and the driver dangerously injured when an Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe passenger train struck the machine at a crossing a mile east of Carrollton, Mo.

Envoy Lind is making progress in his mission to Mexico in spite of his cold reception. His plan for peace have been submitted and were expected to be formally presented to Huerta yesterday and given out in Washington to the same time.

Thaw was acquitted of murder
and there is no charge against him except insanity. Once out of New York, that state would have nothing more to do with him, there being no extradition laws for lunacy. Besides, nobody believes Thaw is crazy.

PEMBROKE PEOPLE

Want Hopkinsville to Aid in Building Pike.

The citizens of Pembroke and Trenton have raised $2,500 towards building 2½ miles of pike between the two places and sent a committee
here last week to get the H. B. M.
A. interested in the matter and raise $1,500 towards the fund necessary to have the pike built. A meeting was called for Friday night by the President of the H. B. M. A. to consider the question, but there were not enough of the members present to act. The gap is beyond the county line, but that should not prevent our citizens giving the aid
asked for, if the amount of business can be brought here instead of going to Clarksville, as has been claimed. To go outside of the county to build pikes would be a new dependence, but if there is money in it, why not do it? The Association is not turning a deaf ear to any call that is worth heeding.

as chairman of the Fiscal Court, has

FUNERAL OF
JAMES C. WEST

Held Yesterday Morning at First Presbyterian Church,
At 10 O'clock.

VICTIM OF WHITE PLAGUE

Sufferings Of Prominent Young Man Are Relieved By Death.

James Carter West, oldest son of Mr. James West, after an invalidism of about two years, passed away
last Saturday morning in the twentieth year of his age. He was born April 3, 1891. His last words were "Father, come close to me so that I can tell you goodbye." Kissing his father on the cheek, with his wasted hand in that of his parent who id-dled him, he turned his head on the pillow, quoting the words of Christ,
"In my Father's house are many mansions," adding, "and there's one for me," and in a few minutes his spirit took its flight and he is now with his mother, who died in 1901.

In the passing of James West the city loses one of its most promising youths. He united with the First Presbyterian church ten years or more ago and was one of the most faithful of the younger members of the congregation, always being in his place at every service of the church, Young People's Society and Sunday school. During his illness he was patient in his suffering and during the latter days, growing weaker and weaker, he talked freely of the approaching end and manifesting a saving faith in his Lord and Master, to whom he had given his heart and life.

Last February he was taken to Rochester, Minn., and underwent an operation for tuberculosis of the kidneys. He remained in the hospital for a month. When he came home to be cared for by loving parents they were hopeful at first but it was not long before they realized that the insidious disease had not been deprived of its victim. It soon became evident that his death was merely a question of time.

Before the end came he asked his father to have his late pastor, Rev.
E. B. Landis, now of Danvers, Ill., conduct his funeral services. Mr.
Landis arrived yesterday morning and the services were held at the church, attended by a large gathering of relatives and friends of the family. The floral tributes were numerous and beautiful.

Rev. E. B. Landis conducted the services, assisted by Revs. H. D.
Smith, Charles Nourse and G. C. Abbitt.

NEW YORK'S
GOVERNORS

Tammany's Henchmen To Ignore Sulzer and Collogue
With Glynn.

PUTTING IT UP TO COURT

Sulzer Expected to Take the Pardon Route to That End.

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 18.—Both
Gov. Sulzer and Lieutenant-Governor Martin H. Glynn, who claims to be acting governor, spent a quiet Sabbath. Mr. Sulzer did not go to church as usual, but spent most of the day at the bedside of his stricken wife and was much encouraged at the favorable report of her nurse.
A few friends and advisers called during the day and he enjoyed a short automobile ride late in the afternoon. Mail for the Governor is delivered to Gov. Sulzer.

It is said that Governor Sulzer may pardon some convict whose term has nearly expired and that by a mutual understanding, Warden Clancy, one of his appointees, will decline to recognize the pardon, thus opening the door to court action by means of mandamus or habeas corpus proceedings.

HARRY THAW
ESCAPED

Makes Successful Dash for Liberty at Mateawan
Asylum.

AUTO WAS IN WAITING.

Slayer of Stanford White
Whose Life Was Saved
by Commitment to Asylum.

Mateawan, N. Y., Aug. 18.—
Harry K. Thaw, the slayer of Stanford White, escaped from the hospital for the criminal insane here at 7:45 o'clock Sunday morning. A dash for liberty through an open gate, a leap into the open door of a powerful automobile that stood quivering outside and a flight like a rocket for the Connecticut state line thirty miles away accomplished his escape.

Once beyond state boundaries Thaw is free. Only months, perhaps years of litigation can bring him back to Mateawan and then only in one event—that he be adjudged insane in the state to which he has fled.

Five confederates manned the car
in which Thaw escaped and a big black limousine which trailed it past the asylum gate. The police have the descriptions of Thaw's confederates and the names under which they registered at a local hotel Friday night and are seeking them.

The hospital authorities believe that Thaw has fled to the shore of Long Island Sound and boarded a yacht waiting with steam up to rush to Europe.

REWARD OFFERED.

A reward of $500 for Thaw's apprehension has been offered by Dr.
R. F. C. Keib, superintendent of the asylum. Howard H. Barnum, the attendant at the gate past whom Thaw flashed in his break for freedom, is under arrest and other arrests are expected to follow in the rigid investigation begun by Dr.
Keib.

Thaw killed Stanford White, an architect of international fame, in New York, June 25, 1906, for attentions to his wife Evelyn Nesbit Thaw. After several trials, he was adjudged insane and sent to the asylum. His wife who has returned to the stage is in deadly terror for her life since learning of his escape.

NARROW ESCAPE.

Mrs. Morehead Came Near Being Struck by Auto.

Mrs. C. G. Morehead, at Tenth and Main streets, came near being struck by an automobile Saturday afternoon. She had stepped from the sidewalk to the crossing when a man driving the car turned into Tenth street. He was not running fast and Mrs. Morehead saw the car just in time to step back and save herself. The driver did not blow his horn.

BROWN'S ROMANCE

He Impersonates Another Brown,
but Never Once Fooled
the Girl.

By DARWIN MAJOR.

Of course it is not wholly my fault that my name is John Brown. True, I know there are other—many other John Browns, but also I know that I never bestowed the name upon myself, nor did I have any part in the bestowal.

Neither did I with premeditation use his name, thrust upon me, to further my own ends or to the harm of any other John Brown who ever lived. But I am only human, although I have ideals; I admit that. And when the gods thrust their best goods into my very arms, I cannot find it always in my heart to resist, albeit my name is so common and there are other John Browns.

And so happened the greatest drama of my life—a drama upon which the curtain is not yet rung down—in fact, upon which I sincerely hope to curtain has only arisen.

It began with the letter I found on my desk, addressed in the daintiest of feminine handwriting to "Mr. John Brown, Care of A. T. Hunt & Co., New York." I opened the letter and a photograph dropped out. And such a photograph! I never have been considered a particularly sentimental man. Indeed, my strong proclivity has been along business lines. But the moment I saw that photograph I realized that I was a doomed man. I was deeply, madly, jealously in love—and with a photograph. If you will look at the photograph I will lay a wager that you will not blame me. And the photograph is only a faint shadow of the original.

Nor had I ever seen the original of the photograph. There was a letter also inside the envelope, and I read it. It said:

Dear John: We were so glad to hear from you and to know that you had come east. We hope to see much of you. We are only fifty miles from the city, and you can run out easily of a Saturday afternoon and spend Sunday with us. I do not know whether I would recognize you or not. It is so many, many years since the old days when we used to play together by the old oak. But I feel sure that it will be the same good friends and comrades we used to be.

We owe you an apology for not answering this sooner, but Aunt Jennie has been ill, and I have neglected it from day to day until nearly a month has gone by. Please forgive me and write us again, and then I will show you by a most prompt answer that we appreciate your letters, and love you as we always have. Aunt Jennie sends her best love and wants to know all about your mother and the girls. Your affectionate cousin,

DOROTHY DAVIS.
P. S.—I inclose my photograph, that you may know, sir, that I am no longer a child in pinafores. I wish you would send yours.

Clearly the letter was not meant for me. I knew no Dorothy Davis. I had not come east because I never had been west. I had no mother living, nor any cousins. And "Aunt Jennie" was an entire puzzle to me.

But the photograph had taken entire possession of my mind and heart and imagination. It showed a dainty little girl of seventeen or eighteen with a jaunty poise of head and a jet blackness of hair and a saucy demureness of eyes—a most inviting, bemitting, tantalizing bit of femininity.

Of course I made immediate inquiries regarding the John Brown for whom the letter was intended. There was no such person. A John Brown had been employed a few weeks since in the furniture department, but had gone west somewhere to accept a better position.

Then it was that the tempter knocked at the portals of my soul and I hesitated—and fell. Why not, write this bewitching Dorothy Davis and impersonate the cousin she had not seen or heard from for years? I did so and received a reply which set me nearly wild. Thus the correspondence began and it occupied my thoughts much to the detriment of my usefulness of the firm. For, it was a most embarrassing correspondence on my part, full of pit-falls and nerve-racking problems. By some sort of luck I stumbled by the troubles pertaining to family matters, but always did I feel the volcano, rumbling beneath me.

But I did not have the courage to go to see her. I was too much afraid of Dorothy's memory or "Aunt Jennie's" memory. And I could get no hint as to how the real John Brown looked.

The peculiar conditions and the wild passion I had acquired for the woman of the photograph led me a most unsettled and restless existence. Finally fate put an end to the situation. I received a sweet little note one day, announcing that Dorothy Davis had arrived in New York and was domiciled with a friend in W. Eighty-second street, and commanding me to call. That settled it. I simply had to go and face the music or turn tail and run away. I faced the music. I went at once to W. Eighty-second street, and after marching back and forth in front of the house for something like an hour or so, summoned courage to run up the steps and ring the bell.

When the original of my photograph appeared, I realized that she was all and more than the cold reproduction suggested. The soft tints of her flesh and the lights in her eyes gave warmth and color which made the photograph a poor thing indeed. She received me with candor and a sort of affection which her half restraint made all the more charming.

Well, I was so dazzled by the reality of the girl's personality, that I simply had not the heart to imperil my footing by telling the truth. So I plunged into a sea of subterfuge and dissembling which presently engulfed me with its waves and embarrassments beside which my correspondence seemed to have been child's play.

Dorothy Davis took me at face value, however—at least apparently, and I led a few days of delicious joy, taking her to theaters and the parks. But the joy was mixed with a very large percentage of guilt, for she persisted in keeping conversation constantly on old associations and family relationships. It taxed my ingenuity to the very limit, and ultimately got to the point that I could not remember what I had told her. I detected myself, several times telling her things flatly contradictory to the things I had told her yesterday. She never seemed to see the inconsistencies and went right along smiling sweetly and putting fresh problems to my over-taxed mind.

Finally, one day, I caught myself in a most mendacious lie—a lie so palpable in view of what I had told her the day before that I saw that all was lost. I went pale and stopped short in my talk.

She gave a little giggle and went right on as though nothing had happened, putting up another problem for me to lie about.

Then what little common sense I have, came to my rescue. I saw that the only hope I had was to confess all and throw myself on her mercy.

"See here Dorothy," I said desperately. "I have been lying to you. I am not your cousin at all. I am some other John Brown. I got your letter intended for him after he left the house and could not be located. I fell in love with your photograph and I deliberately deceived you in order to gain your acquaintance. I have no excuse, excepting that I am madly, desperately in love with you."

"Don't you suppose I know all that?" she asked demurely.

"What!" I exclaimed. "Have I simply been playing the fool for you all the week?"

"Something very like that," she replied. "I knew you were not Cousin John the moment I saw you, and I was curious to see just how far you would go and what foolish things you would do."

I arose burning with shame. "I suppose all I can do now is to go," I said. "If you want to," she replied dropping her eyes.

"What," I shouted. "Do you—can you forgive me?"

She looked up and gave just one shy glance into my eyes and I read in that glance the fruition of all my hope and desires.

Voice With a Smile.

A physician in Germany was fined in court in New York the other day for calling a telephone girl a "camel." That may not seem to a user of the English language a highly opprobrious epithet. But the ways of the German idiom are strange. In it to say "Kamel" to the divinity at the switchboard is about like saying in English, "You bone-headed chump!"

Of course, such a breach of the proprieties in intercourse with central is pretty nearly unthinkable in New York. Before the people had grown used to telephones there were many lapses from grace. But now urbanity has triumphed over irritation. The telephone company has eloquently testified to regeneration by posting the sign everywhere about its offices and branch offices, "The voice with the smile wins." It has won, because it was bound to win. New York's manners have been smoothed and softened by the ubiquitous proprietress of the "voice with a smile."

Could Search Him.

The stranger in the little town in Nova Scotia had waited patiently through four long days of hard rain. When he awoke on the morning of the fifth day it was raining as hard as ever. He packed his things and went to the office of the hotel to pay his bill.

"Does the sun ever shine in this darn town?" asked the stranger.

"I don't know, sir," replied the clerk. "I've only been here three months."

Mistook His Man.

Enter with the open street cars the end seats of porcine traits. A little story, apropos. The other day a man leaped on the running board of a car and said to a seated passenger: "I see, sir, you have the hog seat."

"Oh, excuse me," was the quick reply. "I was not aware I had your seat. I yield it to you, and he slid along and made room. The new occupant of the "hog" seat flushed and the passenger smiled audibly.

Used to Such Whining.

The real estate agent, tired and peevish, arrived at his home in the suburbs.

"Oh, George," greeted his wife, "the dog has been whining all day long! What do you suppose is the matter?"

"Why," growled George, the darn kisser probably wants his house papered!"

Ouch!

"Why am I gloomy?" demanded the undesirable adulter, to whom she had given the cut direct. "Isn't it enough to make one gloomy to be cut by one he loves best?"

"The idea!" exclaimed the heartless girl. "I didn't even know that you shaved yourself."—Catholic Standard and Times.

She Was Smothering.

Rockford, Ala.—Mrs. M. C. Paschal, of this place, says: "I was taken with nervous prostration, and had headache, backache, pains in my right side, and smothering spells I called in physicians to treat my case, but without relief. Finally I tried Cardui, and it gave perfect satisfaction. I recommend it to every sick woman." Are you weak, tired, worn-out? Do you suffer with any of the pains peculiar to weak women. Cardui has a record of over fifty years in relieving such troubles, and will certainly benefit you. It prevents those frequent headaches, and keeps you up, out of bed, feeling happy. Try Cardui.

Growing in Favor.

The water from the well located on the farm of Luther H. Smithson, near Church Hill, is growing in favor every day. The most obstinate cases of indigestion, constipation and stomach trouble are yielding to the medical qualities of this water by a few days use. Probably half the people who say they have "heart trouble" have nothing but indigestion, sometimes manifestly in an acute form. Try the water from Mr. Smithson's well for a few days and test its virtues for yourself. He delivers it your home at 12 1/2 cents a gallon.

Among the many who are using it with beneficial effects we mention:

Flem Clardy, Muncy Moss, Roy Kenner, Gus Breathitt, Jno. C. Hooe, J. W. Lander, Rev. E. W. Barnett, Del. Henderson, John C. Gary.

GETTING THE FACTS STRAIGHT

Statesman's Correction of Statement That Credited Him With Wrestling With the Bear.

"Cy" Cummins, the biggest, tallest and heaviest member of the Maryland legislature, was a guest one night at a "bear supper" given at a club in his county. Bear meat was served and on the stage at the end of the banquet hall there was a tremendous live bear.

Nobody could figure out why the live bear should be there. Speech after speech was made, and joke after joke was sprung. But nobody referred to the large and ferocious animal. At last the toastmaster arose and made these few remarks:

"I now introduce to you Mr. Cy Cummins, a member of our state legislature. He is the man who wrestled with the bear which you see now on the platform. He will tell you how he did it."

"Gentlemen," said Cy, lifting his six feet six inches to their ultimate destination, "to say that I wrestled with that bear is to state a sordid and sinister untruth. I never wrestled with a bear in my life. Whenever I turn my attention to one of those things, I step nimbly up behind him, grab him by the ears and kick him to death."—Popular Magazine.

TRY NOT TO SEE THE BLOTS

Good Lesson for All of Us in Small Girl's Plea for the Overlooking of Fault.

A father, on coming home one evening, tired and somewhat dispirited, was approached by his little daughter with her copy-book, which she had just finished writing. It being her first, her young face red-dened with a beautiful and honest flush, as she was sure of receiving some word of praise and cheer for her hard attempt.

The pages were indeed neatly written, and her father told her how well pleased he was to see how careful she had been. Presently, coming to one page which had two small blots, the little girl laid her hands upon them, and artlessly looking up into her father's face, said: "Papa, don't see blots." Of course he did not, but bent down and planted a kiss on the little forehead and felt thankful for the lesson he had learned.

How precious it would be if, amid all the nameless strifes and discords which so fret and chafe us, we would just lay a finger on the sullied page of human lives and not see the blots. When littleness and meanness and petty oppositions annoy and vex us, if we could only look away from these to some brighter pages.—Selected.

A MOTHER'S GRATITUDE

Many a Mother in Hopkinsville
Will Appreciate the Following.

Many a strong man and many a healthy woman has much for which to thank mother. The care given during their childhood brought them past the danger point and made them healthy men and women. Thousands of children are bothered with incontinence of urine, and inability to retain it is oftentimes called a habit. It is not always the children's fault—in many cases the difficulty lies with the kidneys, and can be readily righted. A Hopkinsville mother tells how she went about it.

Mrs. O. A. McElroy, 622 O'Neal St., Hopkinsville, Ky., says: "I gave my young son part of a box of Doan's Kidney Pills and I know they did him a lot of good. He used to have trouble from weak kidneys every night. One box of Doan's Kidney Pills was all that was needed to strengthen his kidneys. I consider Doan's Kidney Pills a fine remedy for kidney trouble and can highly recommend them."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

The Italians resort to a very simple method when they wish to obliterate the injurious effects of salt air and sunshine after a visit to their villas, the shore of the Adriatic, the Tyrrhenian sea or the lakes. They bathe the face with the white of an egg, well beaten, let it dry on the skin and rinse it off in soft water after fifteen minutes. The treatment is repeated three or four times, and always at night just before retiring.

Mothers! Have Your Children Worms?

Are they feverish, restless, nervous, irritable, dizzy or constipated? Do they continually pick their nose or grind their teeth? Have they cramping pains, irregular and ravenous appetite? These are all signs of worms. Worms not only cause your child suffering, but stunt his mind and growth. Give "Kickapoo Worm Killer" at once. It kills and removes the worms, improves your child's appetite, regulates stomach, liver and bowels. The symptoms disappear and your child is made happy and healthy, as nature intended. CROP REPORT WORK

Thousands of Reporters Contribute to Making of Estimates.

Most of Them Are Not Paid, Being Classed as "Volunteer Correspondents," and Only Reward They Get Is Receipt of Circulars.

Washington.—About 130,000 reporters contribute to the making of the government crop reports which are issued monthly at Washington. Most of these reporters are not paid, but are classed as "volunteer correspondents," and the only reward they get, aside from the satisfaction of doing the work itself, is that they receive the publications of the department without having to write to ask for them. Nevertheless most of them stick to the work. An inquiry made in January, 1912, showed that 88 per cent. of them had served more than a year, 67 per cent. had served more than two years, 42 per cent. more than six years, four per cent. more than twenty-six years, and one per cent. more than thirty-six years.

Among these volunteers are county correspondents who have several assistants who can be called on if necessary. They report directly to Washington. There are also township correspondents who report directly and independently to Washington. Reports from these and still other independent sources are used to check one another. The number of counties of agricultural importance in the United States is approximately 2,500, and the township reporters number 32,000. Then there are reports from many individual farmers and planters received at the end of the growing season. It is their business to question few months have shown a decrease, as is characteristic of a tariff revision period, the total for the fiscal year reached $318,142,000, an increase of nearly $7,000,000 over the previous year.

Under the first year's operation of the new pension law the government paid veterans and widows $175,134,000, an increase of $21,537,000.

The fiscal year closed with $164,704,000 in the general fund of the treasury, as compared with $167,152,000 a year ago.

Secretary McAdoo announced that the daily treasury statement in future would be issued in a complete changed form, designed to show at a glance the assets and liabilities of the government. It will be in the nature of a budget statement, with a purpose of indicating from day to day whether the government revenues are progressing on a surplus or deficit basis.

That the space used by the postal service in federal buildings has a rental value aggregating more than five and a half million dollars annually

Rental Value Ascertained.

Is shown by statistics gathered by Jonathan Bourne, Jr., chairman of the joint committee on railway mail pay and second-class postage. This rental value has never before been ascertained, and has never been considered in computing the cost of the postal service. In making the figures public, Mr. Bourne said:

"Under present methods of post office bookkeeping, if the government is paying $3,000 a year for rent of quarters for a post office, that expenditure is charged as an expense of the service. But if the government expends $100,000 for a public building and locates the post office therein, the rental charge ceases, showing, according to the books, a decrease of $3,000 in expenses, whereas, in fact, a charge of three per cent. interest on the investment would equal the former rent. No account has been kept of the rental value of public buildings.

"Believing that definite information should be available upon this subject, I asked custodians of all federal buildings to submit estimates of the rental value of buildings under their jurisdiction. From information thus secured, and with a statement of the proposition of space used by the postal service, it was ascertained that the rental properly chargeable to the postal service is $5,514,797 in the 719 buildings concerning which reports were received. I submit that intelligent business methods should require that this amount be debited against the postal service in addition to the $4,280,000 now debited for rental of buildings not owned by the government."

The pages of the senate, all youngsters of twelve and thirteen, hold a mock session of that august body late the other afternoon. It attracted dozens of tourists, who flocked into the galleries and applauded the proceedings.

Joseph O'Toole, a messenger in charge of the pages, occupied Vice-President Marshall's chair. The others, in shirt waists and knickerbockers, ranged themselves along in the front seats, usually occupied by dignified statesmen.

A resolution was proposed increasing the salaries of all pages from $75 to $200 a month. Then a nimble page hopped to his feet and offered a substitute fixing the compensation at $2,000 a month. This was adopted with a huzzah that rattled the fresco work.

A bill was offered for the relief of bull pups, with the request that it be referred to the committee on dog fighting.

A youngster named McCoy was inclined to be noisy, and the gavel pounding of O'Toole did not suppress him. When a mock senator moved that the sergeant-at-arms be instructed to apply a Maxim muffer to McCoy, Colonel Higgins came striding in through a rear door. He laughed and joined the audience.

Uncle Sam has made up his mind to steer his people by dangerous pitfalls if they listen to him.

Warns Against Pitfalls.

The other day Dr. W. C. Rueker, assistant to Dr. Rupert Blue of the United States health service, issued a statement telling everybody how to keep cool and well in hot weather.

Following this warning Secretary D. F. Houston of the department of agriculture gave out some useful hints about summer food and drinks.

Bolled down, the advice of Mr. Houston is:

The nose and eyes are the housewives' best detectives of bad food. Smell, observe and taste everything offered as food in the summer time.

The ptomaine, a deadly poison bacillus, thrives mightily in this weather.

Mothers should examine and taste all food for infants, to detect taint. Pasteurize all milk. It is the most dangerous food, when not absolutely clean, pure and fresh.

Clean your ice box and do not handle food more than necessary. Avoid all uncooked foods.

Be careful of doubtful restaurants, particularly so of high seasoned meats and fish.

Insist on boiled water at summer resorts. Do not be misled by the "guaranteed under the pure food and drugs act" label.

A LITTLE BIT HUMOROUS

Well Drugged.

A doctor was summoned to a police station to examine an unconscious prisoner. The prisoner, very muddled and disheveled, lay on the floor of the cell. The physician bent over and examined him, and then, rising, said, in a loud, stern voice:

"This man's condition is not due to drink. He has been drugged."

A policeman turned pale, and said, in a timid, hesitating voice:

"I'm afraid you're right, sir. I drugged him all the way—a matter of a hundred yards or more."

Easily Earned.

"What do you make a week?" asked a magistrate before whom an Italian organ grinder appeared, charging a fellow musician with breaking his instrument.

"What?" exclaimed the magistrate. "Twenty-five dollars a week for grinding an organ?"

"No, sare; not for grind; for shu' up and go away."—Harper's Weekly.

Tough Luck.

Two hard citizens were standing in a secluded spot talking confidentially. One of them suddenly sneaked away while the other stood on guard. Soon the first one was seen to emerge from a window and join his pal.

"Dat's hard luck," said his pal.

It is pretty generally conceded that no horse is perfectly safe. Nobody would have thought that Fire Chief E. P. Fears' "old reliable" would of his own free will, absolutely get out of a walk into a jogging trot. But he did more than that, he absolutely ran away Friday afternoon on Fifteenth street, going at a 2:40 gait down the Canter pike. The buggy to which he was being used by Miss Fears, who had left him standing, was broken to pieces.

Perfection in Motorcycle Construction: The Tourist Trophy Two-Speed Models

The Indian Motorcycle

for 1913 is being built in both the 4 H.P. single and 7 H.P. twin cylinder types. Both are fitted with the Two-Speed Gear which permits perfect regulation of speed in traffic. In touring it enables starting on any hill and riding to the top, no matter how steep the grade.

The foot starting device does away with the necessity for pedals which are omitted. A firm, downward pressure of the foot upon the starting crank starts the machine.

A powerful brake consisting of both internal expansion and external contraction of two bands on a single brake drum is operated by a foot lever on the right side of the machine and also by a grip lever on the left handle bar.

In both front and rear hubs, a knockout axle is used which enables removal of the wheels without disturbing the adjustment of the bearings. There is no detail of refined construction lacking in the Indian Tourist Trophy Two-Speed Models. In addition to these improvements, the Cradle Spring Frame and folding Footboards place these models upon the pinnacle of motorcycle perfection. OVER 10,000 OF THESE MACHINES NOW ON THE ROAD.

THE THRICE-A-WEEK EDITION OF THE NEW YORK WORLD

Practically a Daily at the price of a Weekly.

No Other Newspaper in the World Gives So Much at So Low a Price.

This is a time of great events and you will want the news accurately and promptly. The Democrats, for the first time in sixteen years, will have the Presidency and they will have the Presidency and they will also control both branches of Congress. The political news is sure to be of the most absorbing interest.

There is a great war in the Old World, and you may read of the extinction of the vast Turkish Empire in Europe, just as a few years ago you read how Spain lost her last foot of soil in America, after having ruled the empire of half the New World.

The World long since established a record for impartiality, and anybody can afford its Thrice-a-Week edition, which comes every other day in the week, except Sunday. It will be of particular value to you now. The Thrice-a-Week World also abounds in other strong features, serial stories, humor, markets, cartoons; in fact, everything that is to be found in a first class daily.

THE THRICE-A-WEEK WORLD'S regular subscription price is only $1.00 per year, and this pays for 156 papers. We offer this unequalled newspaper and the Hopkinsville Kentuckian together for one year for $2.65.

The regular subscription price of the two papers is $3.00.

LADY SPRING-RICE A NATIVE OF WASHINGTON

Lady Spring-Rice, the wife of the British ambassador, enjoys the unique distinction of being a native Washingtonian, while at the same time to the last degree British, without any kinship with the younger English-speaking nation. She was born here during her parents' residence, and there remain old inhabitants who still remember the little girl of three as she was when her father was removed to another capital.

In Sir Cecil and Lady Spring-Rice may be found another example of the liberal-minded, democratic representatives of his Britannic majesty made familiar in Mr. and Mrs. James Bryce. It fits entirely with the leveling process apparent everywhere that Great Britain, hitherto aloof and caste-ridden, is represented here by a man who knows this country as his own and who has always manifested a sincere admiration for republicanism in the last interpretation of the word. Lady Spring-Rice offers delightful possibilities, to Washington generally rather than to the inner circle where in the former Britishers have revolved.

Washington has not yet had the pleasure of welcoming this latest addition to the ambassadorial set, for she went direct to Dublin, N. H., from her steamer. She has not been strong this past year, and her husband was solicitous lest the excitement attendant on her arrival at the new home might prove too fatiguing.

As the daughter of a diplomatist and statesman whose name is international, Sir Francis or more familiarly known Frank Lascelles, Lady Spring-Rice, is really what is vaguely known as a cosmopolite. One of her chief joys, says her husband, will be to discover how many old friends are now residing in Washington both in the diplomatic corps and in American public life. Sir Cecil was promoted from the legation at Stockholm to the embassy here, and the same procedure marked the transfer of the present ambassador from Austria-Hungary, M. Constantin Dumba. It happens that this is the fourth post at which Sir Cecil and M. Dumba have been colleagues and, of course, they have become close friends, almost brothers, and the same cordial ties unite their wives and children.

Of the corps serving in Washington Lady Cecil has known the Belgian minister and his American wife, Mr. and Mrs. Havenith, the latter formerly Miss Helen Foulke of this city. She also knew the Swiss minister when he was in Tokio, and the minister from the Netherlands, Mr. Loudon, and his wife, American-born Lady Eustis of the well-known Louisiana family, who also came to Washington after residing for nearly ten years in Japan. Of the officials in public life the British ambassador knows Senator and Mrs. Lodge very well, and they have also a close friendship with the former President and Mrs. Roosevelt. Indeed, a bit of exceedingly interesting diplomatic gossip was that when Germany sent to Washington a close friend of the president's, Baron Speck von Sternburg, the minister of foreign affairs, wavered for a time between the selection of Sir Cecil Spring-Rice and James Bryce, and finally selected the latter because of his greater age and experience.

Sir Cecil is endeavoring to carry out some of the commissions of Lady Rice in the arrangement of the embassy. The British government furnished the home of its envoy, but at present it looks quite bare, stripped of the private possessions of the Bryces and lacking those of the new family.

MAP OF WHOLE WORLD, PLAN OF SCIENTISTS

According to a report made by Rear Admiral Robert E. Peary, U. S. N., retired, discoverer of the north pole, to the National Geographic society, the most famous geographers of all countries are soon to prepare an aeronautical map of the whole world.

This was decided at the tenth International Geographic congress, which was held at Rome in April. For the purpose an international meeting will be called, which will determine conventional signs and rules of uniform construction for such a chart, which is to be on a scale of 1:200,000.

Ten other propositions of international interest to geographers were approved by the congress, the most important of which are detailed in Admiral Peary's report, which has just reached the National Geographic society. Admiral Peary was one of the delegates to the congress from the society, the other American members of the organization of the congress being Henry Gannett, president of the society; Gen. Hubbard, president of the Peary Arctic club; Rear Admiral Colby M. Chester, U. S. N.; Prof. Libbey of Princeton university; Prof. Arthur L. Day of Washington, W. W. Rockhill and Prof. Davis, Ward and Daly of Harvard university.

Among the propositions approved by the congress, in addition to the one for the aeronautical map, Admiral Peary says in his report, may be noted the following:

"To convene another official conference, in Paris, near the end of the current year, to which delegates from all civilized countries are to be invited, to determine questions of detail of a 1-100,000 world map.

"That the most important problems to be settled in connection with the international exploration of the north Atlantic ocean relate to the size, the regional extent and the nature of periodical variations of water layers to the depth of 1,000 meters, and it was recommended to continue systematic observations upon ocean currents and upon the temperature and salinity near the surface of the sea.

"That the Royal Danish Geographical society invite the general secretaries of the principal geographical societies of the world to meet in Denmark in 1914 for the purpose of organizing a world union of geographical societies.

"To organize in each country during the summer vacation periods of the higher institutions of learning international courses of instruction in geography, in which foreign savants would be invited to take part. The plan contemplates also the founding of an international geographical institute, the seat of which is left for later determination, this institute to direct and co-ordinate the studies and all geographical initiatives which have an international character.

"For the preparation of a universal geography as a complement to the 1:1,000,000 world map, and the presentation to the next congress of a practical working plan for such preparation."

SOCIETY MADE MRS. CARTER'S POODLE SICK

Not louder shrieks to pitying heaven are cast, When husbands, or when lapdogs, breathe their last.

Alexander Pope, you may remember, wrote that. So it is evident that away back in those days there were women who loved their canine pets just about as much as does Mrs. William E. Carter of Bryn Mawr, New York, Philadelphia, Newport and various other centers of fashion. Mrs. Carter, it will be remembered, is the woman who has retired from social circles temporarily while her Pekinese poodle, Hee Too, is recovering from an attack of nervous prostration brought on by the festivities of the fashionable summer season.

Mrs. Carter has a specialist and a trained nurse down from New York to her care for Hee Too, and it is believed that with rest and good care the patient will recover. Until he does there is nothing doing in the social line at the Carter villa in Newport.

Mrs. Carter paid $5,000 for Hee Too, but she thinks more of him than the five thousand vulgar dollars represent. He has a pedigree as long as your arm and there are some fanciers who insist that Hee Too is a distant relation of a blue-blooded ancestor that once sat in the lap of Queen Victoria and was fondled frequently by the late King Edward.

But his pedigree is not the only claim to distinction which Hee Too possesses. He's a trick dog who can actually sit up and beg, can jump through a hoop and they do say he has table manners so elegant as to make the most fastidious of his royal breed sit up and take exceptional notice.

There is a certain sentiment surrounding the poodle, too. Mrs. Carter made a trip to England especially to get Hee Too. She had a dog just like Hee Too, and she thought a lot of it. With her husband she was bringing the original Hee Too back from Europe on the Titanic, when that steamship struck an iceberg and went to the bottom. Hee Too the First went down with the ship. Mr. and Mrs. Carter managed to get into a lifeboat with their children and were saved. But poor Hee Too the First, with a half dozen canine companions, was swallowed up in the waters.

The first Hee Too was a great favorite with Mrs. Carter, and there was much ado about his sudden and early demise. The Carters heard of another Hee Too in London, who looked for all the world like a twin brother of Hee Too the First. So Mrs. Carter got aboard ship, took a trip to England and brought back with her the Hee Too which is now prostrated at Newport.

THINKS NEATNESS HALTS AGE

Doctor Asserts There is Much Beneficial Psychic Influence in
"Sprucing Up."

Neatness, bathing and massage are recommended to men past middle age who would avoid manifestations of decline. Dr. J. L. Naescher of Boston writes in the New York Medical Journal:

"The improvement in the general appearance has a profound psychic influence, not only directly through the stimulation of the sense of pride in appearance, but indirectly through the flattering comments which it arouses. This important measure is generally neglected by men, yet aside from the beneficial psychic influence, for aesthetic reasons alone the old man should endeavor to make himself appear as attractive as possible.
This does not mean that he should resort to the artificial devices that middle aged and elderly women employ to enhance their charms. It does mean that the old man should stimulate the surface circulation by means of baths and massage, remove wrinkles and folds by inunction with animal fats, try to stimulate the growth of hair on the head and remove hair from abnormal situations
as the ears, use a cane and wear braces to overcome the tendency to stoop, employ harmless cosmetic measures to improve his appearance, and, above all, observe a sense of neatness in dress. Instead of decrying such a course as vanity it should be encouraged as a laudable effort to maintain a youthful spirit."

MOLASSES KILLED SEA FISH

100,000 Gallons Pumped Into Water
of a San Domingo Port Did Immense Damage.

More than 100,000 gallons of mollasses were recently pumped overboard at Macoris, according to officers of the British bark Sunlight, which arrived recently from the San Domingo port with 400,000 gallons of molasses in bulk. The sailors said that the great quantity of mollasses when thrown overboard made the water so thick that the fish were unable to swim in it and died by hundreds.

The square rigger was 16 days
coming up from Macoris. The officers said that not enough vessels
could be secured to carry the molasses crop away from San Domingo, and in order to make room for this year's crop it was necessary to pump more than 100,000 gallons of perfectly good molasses into the harbor.

The Sunlight was anchored in the harbor when the molasses was pumped over. The water, the sailors said, looked as dark as coal. Several of the seamen were furious and jumped overboard for a swim.
They did not expect to find the water sticky, but they did and were glad when hauled out by several companions.

The sweet and sticky stuff must have attracted thousands of fish, for hundreds of large dead fish came to the surface of the molasses water soon after the 100,000 gallons had been pumped into the harbor.

SHEARED HIS FLOWING LOCKS

British Statesman Recently the Victim of New Barber and His Own Absentmindedness.

A few weeks ago the members of the British house of commons gasped with amazement when Premier Asquith, whose hair has always been of a dignified length, entered the chamber bashfully from behind the speaker's chair and revealed that his locks had been shorn as closely as those of one of Oliver Cromwell's "Roundheads."

At first it was thought that the premier had adopted a new and more fashionable method of "doing" his hair, but it now transpires that he did not willingly sacrifice his flowing locks. He, as much as anyone else, was greatly perturbed when he discovered his loss.

The catastrophe was due to two causes—first the engagement of a new barber, and the other the premier's love of books. While the wielder of the shears was operating Mr. Asquith was deeply immersed in a book. He altogether failed to notice the barber's artistic efforts, and the barber, proud of his work, performed so well as to leave his victim
among the well "shaven and shorn."

TAKEN ON TRUST.

"Are these good cantaloups?"

"Yes'm."

"Are you sure?"

"Reasonably so, mum. Of course they ain't guaranteed by no trust company."

TOUGH LUCK.

"You say this lobbyist has been called 'protean'?"

"Yes, but he's a 'quick-change artist' who failed to get the change."

HOW HE TRAVELS.

Footlighte—Do you consider
Hamm travels on the square?

Miss Sue Brette—No; he's traveling on one of the circuits now.

AND THERE YOU ARE.

Mrs. Baeor—How's the new girl doing?

Mrs. Egbert—Oh, just about as she pleases, thank you.

CONTINUOUS PERFORMANCE.

"That fake musician is stringing
his harp."

"Not half as energetically as he is stringing his audience."

IN DOUBT.

She—Do you intend to go abroad
on your wedding trip when you get married?

He—I certainly do if I succeed in marrying the right girl.—Puck.

HER ATTITUDE.

Mrs. Jipes (looking at proofs of her latest photograph)—I won't stand for any such portrait as that!

Mr. Jipes—O, I think I would;
you sat for it.
